Communications:

- Media coverage this afternoon has focussed heavily on the Prime Minister's media availability, and his comments about the demonstrations. He indicated that Parliament wouldn't be intimidated by demonstrators.
- Ottawa Police also news conference this afternoon. In his statements, Chief Sloly thanked all LE partners, including RCMP – saying all have exhibited efficient, professional and compassionate service. A hotline is being established for people to report criminal acts – for residents, businesses, and even demonstrators. He often repeated messaging that it has been a huge success that no one has been injured or died, and that there has been no major escalation into riot situations – but that ALL options remain on the table for managing the situation. He confirmed that some OPS officers are being redeployed into communities tomorrow, with officers from partner agencies picking up some of the operational slack downtown.
- There is some increased activity in the downtown core, with a number of tractors blocking an intersection. There are recent posts on [s.37] encouraging that “everyone head downtown now”.
